Game Instructions

There is a teacher answer key included that will show what the proper sequence of the game should be.

To play the game, distribute the cards among the students involved.

The student with that first card (start) reads both the "I have..." and "Who has..?" parts out loud. Then, the next student that has the card that matches the "Who has..?" description that was read aloud will read their "I have..." and "Who has..?" parts. The game is played until all cards have been read (finish).

The game can be played as a center or as a class depending on class size. Additionally, it can be played by a single student by spreading all of the cards out and working their way through one by one.

Money - Answer Key

If played correctly, the game should follow the sequence below. Use this answer key so you only need to check the cards if there are conflicting answers among the students.
